The compressor and turbine sections each include alternating series of airfoils. The airfoils in the turbine section can be, for example, rotor blades and stator vanes. Some rotor blades have been designed to reduce operational stresses in the airfoil and provide improved service life. Some of these rotor blades include various internal cooling passages and cooling circuits for cooling the airfoil walls. For example, the airfoil of the rotor blade can include a number of integral internal cooling circuits. Some rotor blades include transpiration cooling passages. In some embodiments, air transpiration through the f678ea9f9e
